

I am against use of cellular telephones aboard airborne aircraft. It will compromise safety and cabin demeanor. I am a flight attendant (for NWA) and I can envision all kinds of in-flight scenarios that will make passengers hostile and reduce safety levels. They already argue about luggage space, foot room, reclined seats, and other inconveniences and sometimes these arguments turn into real problems involving physical contact. The use of phones in flight will only add to the problems. I urge you to please listen to the Flight Attendant labor groups/unions' comments on this matter and proceed accordingly.
